Additional information regarding attempted service, etc.:

At approximately 8:30 p.m. Mountain Time, I observed a male, in his late forties or early fifties, who was bald. From my prior review of photographs, he appeared to be William (Bill) Browder. I approached him on a walkway outside of a building in Aspen, Colorado. Browder confirmed his identity to me, whereupon I stated I need to deliver him papers and I reached out to serve him. Browder looked at the documents, refused to accept them, turned away from me, and quickly walked away. I dropped the documents (which included the subpoena and exhibits, as well as $96.00 check) at his feet on the ground.
